Gentlemen:

Electrologists should not be classified in the same category as surgeons. We are not doctors, we don't draw blood with our insertions. The fine probe we use to remove hair is inserted directly onto the natural opening of the skin(hair follicle), requires much expertise, and is a special procedure in itself—but not considered surgery. I know of no medical insurance that insures us as medical doctors.

Please do the right thing and exempt electrology from this bill.
